

FROM BOSTON TO BOLIVIA: CLOSING THE CULTURAL GAP BY PRACTICING ANTHROPOLOGY IN HEALTH DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS

ADRIANA SMITH

FRIDAY, 20 NOVEMBER

1:00 P.M.

238 HRCB

Adriana Smith has been involved in various health promotion programs and research studies in Bolivia, Vietnam, and low-income populations in Boston. Smith is now coordinating a sexual and reproductive health program for men in Guatemala for WINGS, an NGO based in Guatemala. She received a BS in anthropology from BYU in 2004 and received an MPH from Boston University in 2007. Her lecture will address how she has drawn on anthropological concepts in various health research and development programs to build a link between external aid and community resources.