Shane Strate

VISITING PROFESSOR OF HISTORY, BYU

Shane Strate joined Brigham Young University campus this fall as part of the visiting faculty program, where he will teach Southeast Asian history. During 2007–08, Strate was employed as an assistant professor at BYU—Hawaii under their visiting faculty program. In 2006, he returned to Thailand for research as a Fulbright Hays Fellowship Dissertation Research Abroad recipient. Strate attended

Ricks College as an undergrad before serving a full-time mission in Bangkok. He eventually received an MA in history from BYU—Provo and has completed everything but his dissertation in Southeast Asian history during a full-ride, four-year PhD scholarship program at the University of Wisconsin. Strate and his wife, Kaddi, are the parents of three children: Jake, Meg, and Luke.
