Peter Leman specializes in African literature and oral culture, Irish literature, postcolonial theory, law and literature, and colonial and postcolonial legal history. Leman served an LDS mission in Uganda (1997–99), when the conflict with the Lord’s Resistance Army was particularly intense. He has since closely followed and conducted research into the nature and origins of this particular conflict. His latest publication is “African Oral Law and the Critique of Colonial Modernity in The Trial of Jomo Kenyatta” (Law and Literature, Vol. 23, No. 1, 2011). He received a PhD in English from the University of California—Irvine.

Sponsored by the David M. Kennedy Center for International Studies, Department of History, Department of Spanish & Portuguese, College of Family, Home, and Social Sciences Annual Giving Fund, and International Cinema.