Our program will begin in Edinburgh and end in London. In between we’ll hike roughly 200 miles over mountains, along rivers, across moors, through stately gardens and working farms, and along England's chalky southern coast. We’ll see castles, cathedrals, ruins, museums, and at least one henge. We’ll study the work of many important authors and visit the landscapes that inspired them. We’ll see Shakespeare’s plays performed a few blocks from the house he was born in, we’ll take a stroll to the Brontë waterfall, and we’ll eat lunch in the garden of Jane Austen's house. Speaking of food, we’ll eat pasties in Cornwall, Indian food on Brick Lane, and chocolate everywhere.

Our path will take us through Scotland, Wales, and England, with stops in Edinburgh, the Lake District, Haworth, York, Manchester, Snowdonia, Stratford, Oxford, Bath, Salisbury, Winchester, Canterbury, Dover, London, and many more spots along the way.
