

NEW COURSE: SW 595R

Offered: Winter 2019, 1-2:40pm Thurs (2 credits) Instructor: Stacey Shaw, MSW, PhD

APPLIED GLOBAL RESEARCH SEMINAR

Images from artwork commemorating the Nansen Refugee Award 2015 by Clarice Holt:
<https://clariceholt.wordpress.com/page/3/>

Course topics will be tailored to student interests, emphasizing:

- Developing relevant research questions and approaches
- Community partnership and forms of community involved research
- Used mixed methods: qualitative and quantitative methodologies
- Testing social service interventions
- Dissemination of results and sustainability
- Practical examples from intervention research projects in Malaysia and the U.S.

The course will be useful for students who:

- Plan to develop their own research project
- Want to get involved in research
- Want to learn more about implementing research projects in diverse community settings, particularly in regards to evaluating social service programs
- Are self-motivated and have some experience in social work practice and research
- Graduate or undergraduate students welcome
- Final projects will include a paper, proposal, or poster, according to student interests

For more information: stacey_shaw@byu.edu, 2175 JFSB, 801-422-6167