

Miscarriages and Martyrs in Early America

Mary Eyring, a professor of English and affiliate faculty of Global Women's Studies, studies early American literature (including women writers) and early American studies (including women's lives). Eyring's presentation on women's experiences with miscarriage and martyrdom in early America is part of a longer book project called Saltwater: Globalizing Early American Grief, which received a BYU Women's Research Initiative Grant.