

International Development

The international development minor is an interdisciplinary program that in its organizational structure reflects the complex and multidimensional nature of development. Students learn that each discipline defines and carries out development principles in different ways. Required and supplemental courses are constructed from departments across campus and currently accommodates students from over fifty majors.

THE MINOR

Where can I learn more about minoring in International Development?

Interested students should meet with either the International Development faculty coordinator, Professor Tim Heaton or one of the counselors at the Kennedy Center

Advisement Center (273 HRCB).

How do I declare a minor in International Development?

Go to the Kennedy Center Advisement Center (273 HRCB), where the secretaries will assist you.

What are the minor's requirements?

See the International Development page in the BYU Undergraduate Catalog

CLUBS AND HONOR SOCIETIES

Students for International Development (SID), Model United Nations, International Society, foreign language clubs, choirs, and honor societies. See the clubs page.

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES

The Internet is a great tool to learn about international development and discover the vast range of career opportunities within the field. Search for international jobs databases for NGOs and government agencies that are great contributors to the development field.

No Events