

Have Global Research. Will Share Widely. Kennedy Research Fellows

Have you conducted research on the myths and realities of race in a national or international context and want to share it with a wider audience? If so, consider applying to become a Kennedy Research Fellow.

To apply, please submit a completed paper reporting your research results. Students accepted into the program will be awarded a $1,000 fellowship and will be given the opportunity to present their papers as part of the Kennedy Center's ongoing lecture series.

While all substantive, original academic research will be considered, preference will be given to research that is international in scope or topic and that corresponds with the selected theme of an ongoing or future lecture series. We are particularly interested in research on the theme for winter 2021: Race: Myths and Realities.

Submission due date: 26 March 2021

See kennedy.byu.edu/kennedy-research-fellows/ for details.
