

THE PSEUDO-DEMOCRAT'S DILEMMA: WHY ELECTION MONITORING BECAME AN INTERNATIONAL NORM

WEDNESDAY, 19 SEPTEMBER
NOON
238 HRCB

Susan Hyde

ASSISTANT PROFESSOR OF POLITICAL SCIENCE AND INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS, YALE UNIVERSITY

Susan Hyde, an assistant professor of political science and international affairs at Yale University, is affiliated with the MacMillian Center and the Institute for Social and Policy Studies. Hyde has held fellowships at the Brookings Institution in Washington, D.C., and Princeton University's Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governance. Her current research explores the effects of international democracy promotion efforts, and she has published in World Politics, Comparative Political Studies, Perspectives on Politics, and the Journal of Politics. She recently completed a book entitled the Pseudo-Democrat's Dilemma: Why Election Monitoring Became an International Norm. Other research interests include international influences on domestic politics, elections in developing countries, international norm creation, election manipulation, and the use of natural and field experimental research methods. She has served as an international observer with several organizations for elections in Albania, Indonesia, Nicaragua, Pakistan, and Venezuela, and has worked for the Democracy Program at the Carter Center. Hyde teaches courses on international organizations, democracy promotion, the global spread of elections, and the role of non-state actors in world politics. She received a PhD from the University of California—San Diego.