

POLICE REFORM IN MODERN LATIN AMERICA: PAST AND PRESENT

THURSDAY, 20 FEBRUARY
II:00 A.M.
238 HRCB

Osvaldo Barreneche

PROFESSOR OF HISTORY, NATIONAL UNIVERSITY OF ARGENTINA

Osvaldo Barreneche is a professor of history and the chair of Society, Politics, and Fraternity at the National University of Argentina in La Plata. Barreneche is one of the leaders of a movement among Latin American scholars called “The University Network for the Study of Fraternity.” The network is an international academic dialogue that aims to promote the study and research of the fraternity as a political category, both in social sciences and humanities. Barreneche is the author of many books and specializes in issues related to law, politics, and justice.

Sponsored by the College of Family, Home, and Social Sciences; Latin American Studies; and the Political Science and History Departments.