

LIBYA: THE END OF THE BEGINNING— REGIONAL IMPLICATIONS OF THE END OF THE QADHAFI REGIME

THURSDAY, 8 SEPTEMBER
2:00 P.M.
238 HRCB

George Joffé

VISITING PROFESSOR OF GEOGRAPHY, KINGS COLLEGE, UNIVERSITY OF CAMBRIDGE

George Joffé is a visiting professor of geography at Kings College, where he is attached to the Centre of International Studies at the University of Cambridge, and also a visiting professor at London University. Joffé teaches on undergraduate and postgraduate courses in both universities. His research interests include trans-national risk in the Mediterranean, legal systems and migrant communities, and Euro-American relations. Previously, he was deputy director and director of studies at the Royal Institute of International Affairs (Chatham House, 1997–2000). As well as being an associate fellow of the Middle East and North Africa Programme at the Royal United Services Institute, he is also a member of the Instituto de Estudos Estratégicos e Internacionais in Lisbon, where he manages the EuroMeSCo network of strategic studies institutes in Europe and the Mediterranean basin on behalf of the European Union, as part of the Euro-Mediterranean Partnership. His numerous publications include the Politics of Governing: A Comparative Introduction (co-author, 2006), Jordan in Transition (2002), and Perspectives on Development: The Euro-Mediterranean Partnership (1999). He is also co-editor of the Journal of North African Studies.