

Look Over Your Shoulder— the Europeans are Coming

Panel Discussion | Book Critique

Monday, 21 March

1:00 P.M.

238 HRCB

James Faulconer, professor of philosophy and Faculty Center associate director

Wade Jacoby, associate professor of political science and Center for the Study of Europe director

Anca Sprenger, associate lecturer of French and Romanian

Scott Sprenger, associate professor of French

T.R. Reid, Washington Post Rocky Mountain bureau chief and popular commentator on National Public Radio

T.R. Reid

Keynote Lecture

Wednesday, 30 March

3:00 P.M.

250 SWKT

New York Times bestselling author T.R. Reid provides an informed yet accessible look at important issues in his book The United States of Europe. Reid will discuss Europe's slow, but continued political and economic success and its positioning as the next world power at the Winter 2005 Book of the Semester lecture. Reid is an apt 'ambassador' for Europe in the sense that he speaks to a U.S. audience and helps us begin to ask important questions that will lead to a more in-depth discussion. The book is also a helpful basic primer on new European institutions and members—something that will be of great value for anyone seeking to become better informed on global issues.

