

Global Awareness Lecture
Fall 2007

Competition between Giants: The EU as a “New” Global Power

Birol A. Yeşilada

Professor of political science and international studies, Portland State University

Wednesday, 17 October
NOON
238 HRCB

Birol A. Yeşilada holds the endowed chair in Contemporary Turkish Studies in the Mark O. Hatfield School of Government at Portland State University (PSU). Yeşilada came to PSU in September 1998 from the University of Missouri—Columbia, where he was the Political Science Department chair. He is currently vice president of Balaxa, LLC of Tigard, Oregon, which specializes in international trade and consulting. His current research interests include global power transition, EU issues, World Values Survey (PI for Cyprus), political and economic development of Turkey, radical Islam and terrorism, the Cyprus negotiations, and politics of economic reform in the emerging markets. His publications include Emerging European Union (with David Wood, Longman, 4th ed. 2006) and numerous articles and book chapters including “Competition among Giants: A Look at How Future Enlargement of the European Union Could Affect Global Power Transition,” International Studies Review (with Brian Efirid and Peter Noordijk, 2007), “Political Future of Afghanistan and Its Implications for U.S. Policy,” Conflict Management and Peace Science (with Jacek Kugler and Brian Efirid, spring 2003), and “Negotiating a Resolution to the Cyprus Problem: Is Potential European Union Membership a Blessing or a Curse?” International Negotiation Journal (with Ahmet Sozen, 2002). He is co-editor of International Studies Perspectives and former associate editor of Middle East Studies Association Bulletin. Yeşilada has received numerous awards and grants including the Fulbright fellowship and a grant from the Joint Committee on the Middle East of the American Council of Learned Societies and the Social Science Research Council. As a policy consultant, he has worked with various U.S. government departments and offices, the Council on Foreign Relations, the U.S. Institute of Peace, the RAND Corporation, Booz Allen Hamilton, Nathan Associates, Barclays Capital, and the World Bank, and he is an academic associate of the Atlantic Council. Recently, he was invited by the White House to take part in a panel study at the RAND Corporation on “Politics and Islam in the New Constitution of Afghanistan.” Yeşilada received a BA in neurobiology from the University of California—Berkeley, an MA in political science from San Francisco State University, and a PhD in political science from the University of Michigan. A native of Cyprus, he moved to the U.S. in 1971 and is married to the former Susan Diana Lesea. They are the parents of two daughters.