

Global Awareness Lecture
Winter 2006

The UN Scandal that Wasn't: Understanding the Volcker Report

Gregory B. Craig

Partner, Williams & Connolly LLP, Washington, D.C.

Wednesday, 1 March
NOON
250 SWKT

Gregory B. Craig is a trial lawyer who has successfully defended individuals and organizations in a number of high-profile criminal and civil proceedings including representing UN Secretary General Kofi Annan in connection with the Volcker Commission's investigation of the Oil-for-Food Programme at the UN; Juan Miguel Gonzalez, in his successful effort to regain custody of son, Elian; and as assistant to President Bill Clinton and Special Counsel in the White House during the impeachment proceedings. His experience also extends to administrative, antitrust, and appellate law, as well as arbitration, employment and labor, First Amendment and media, and international disputes. He received an AB from Harvard College (magna cum laude, Phi Beta Kappa, 1967), a diploma in historical studies from Cambridge University (1968), and a JD from Yale Law School (1972).