

Specificity Specifically:

Pests, Parameters, and Paradigms in Cross-Cultural Research

Tyler Gibb

Political science major, with anthropology minor

Friday, 24 February
NOON
238 HRCB

Tyler Gibb traveled to Ghana, West Africa, twice as part of the medical anthropology Field Study Program. Gibb's initial research centered on the medicinal uses and cultural meanings of insects among the traditional communities of the Ashanti Region. After completing the project, he presented his findings at the 2004 National Conference of the Entomological Society of America. Gibb is currently applying to begin a joint JD/MA program focusing on international relations and international development.

For more information on International Field Studies, please visit the International Study Programs web site at <http://kennedy.byu.edu/isp>.