

Hindsight is 20/20: Planning the Future by Looking at the Past

Mark Austin

Regional coordinator, Bureau for Global Health, USAID

Friday, 2 November
NOON
238 HRCB

Mark Austin joined the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID) in 2001, allowing him to travel and to work on health issues in numerous countries throughout Africa, Asia, and the Middle East. Austin received a BA in cultural anthropology and a minor in Arabic from BYU in 1995, during which he conducted a five-month independent field study in Tamil Nadu, India. After graduation, he spent a year as a Fulbright fellow in Morocco (1996–1997) and went on to complete his graduate studies at Harvard University where he received an MS in international health and population. A native of Idaho Falls, ID, he currently lives with his wife and nine-month-old son in Alexandria, VA, where he is still learning how to balance his three passions: family, day job, and night job as a musician.