

International Relations Lecture Winter 2009

U.S. Foreign Assistance: Why We Do It; Why It Matters; New Approaches

Aaron H. Sherinian

Managing Director, Public Affairs, Department of Congressional and Public Affairs, Millennium Challenge Corporation

Friday, 23 January

NOON

*B-092 JFSB

As managing director for public affairs, Aaron Sherinian manages the MCC's strategic relationship with media outlets and the organization's ongoing outreach efforts with stakeholders and public institutions. Prior to this assignment, Sherinian served as press attaché at the U.S. Embassy in Quito, Ecuador, where he was responsible for embassy relations with media outlets in the country and acted as the ambassador's media advisor in promoting U.S. Government public diplomacy objectives. His diplomatic experience includes a tour as deputy political and economic chief at the U.S. Embassy in Yerevan, Armenia, where he managed coordination and outreach for the U.S. Government's annual assistance budget of $90 million in that country. He served in the political and consular sections of the U.S. Embassy in Costa Rica and in the office of policy planning under two Assistant Secretaries of State for the Western Hemisphere. Sherinian's experience also includes service at U.S. Missions in Colombia and the Holy See (Vatican). Before joining the Department of State, he worked at the Washington International Trade Association (WITA) and also held positions as a marketing consultant for the Italian distributors for Apple Computer and as a freelance interpreter and writer in Italy. Sherinian is a native of Pasadena, California, and received degrees from Brigham Young University and Johns Hopkins University (School of Advanced International Studies). In addition to Spanish, he speaks Italian, Armenian, and French. Sherinian and his wife are the parents of two children.

 Pardon our mess.
The Kennedy Center
Conference Room, 238 HRCB, is under renovation.