

INTERNATIONAL FORUM SERIES

“The U.S. Response to Trafficking in Humans: Is it Enough?”

Jini L. Roby
assistant professor of social work

Wednesday
3 December
12:00 NOON
238 HRCB

Jini Roby, assistant professor of social work, specializes in women's and children's issues particularly related to adoption and abuse. Roby has presented and published widely on these subjects. Before joining BYU in 1998, Roby was an attorney guardian ad litem and represented the best interests of abused and neglected children as court-appointed counsel (1994–98), and prior to that she was in private practice focusing on family, child welfare, and juvenile law (1992–94). She received a BS in social work, MS in marriage and family therapy and MSW in social work, and JD all from BYU.

This lecture will be webcast live online and archived at <http://kennedy.byu.edu/events>. International Forum Series lectures are open to the public. Sponsored by the David M. Kennedy Center for International Studies.