Scandinavian Perspectives on Environmental Policy

Finland and the rest of Scandinavia have been at the forefront of innovative environmental policies for decades. What motivates this engagement? How does Finland, in particular, balance the demands of economic well-being and environmental resilience?
