Ask Me Anything about careers in global health.

Reshma Naik is a senior policy analyst for the Population Reference Bureau, a nonprofit organization that collects and supplies statistics for research and/or academic purposes. Naik has worked on a range of topics in global public health and has lived and worked in rural parts of Ghana and South Africa conducting community-based intervention research. She frequently travels to sub-Saharan Africa for projects aiming to bridge the gap between research and practice. Naik received an MPH from the Tulane School of Public Health and Tropical Medicine and a DrPH from the Boston University School of Public Health.
