Taryn Davis Holland will provide an overview of her career in management. Holland will describe her career path, provide career advice, and discuss life lessons.

She is a senior associate at Development Gateway and manages several large-scale technical projects focused on aid information and financial and geospatial data. Her specialty is designing systems, processes, and training programs that encourage data use by governments and development partners. Holland has supported aid management program implementations in over six countries, the development of the UNDG Information Management System, and leads DG's involvement with the International Aid Transparency Initiative. Previously, she worked for the American Red Cross. She received a BS in sociology from BYU and is working toward an MS in development management at American University.

Lecture will be followed by a Q&A session.
