What was life like for women faculty at BYU before there was a Women’s Studies program? When and how did Women’s Studies become a field of research and an official program at BYU? How did Women’s Studies at BYU go “Global”? Come find out at this week’s Kennedy Center “Women and Politics” panel.

Valerie Hegstrom is a professor of Spanish and Portuguese and coordinator of the Global Women’s Studies program at BYU.

Connie Lamb is a senior librarian and the Women’s Studies librarian at the Harold B. Lee Library.

Amy Harris is an associate professor of history and family history/genealogy at BYU.