

Ask Me Anything

about the intelligence community, current events in congress, and careers in national security.

FRI | 15 NOV 2019

3 PM

238 HRCB

Benjamin T. Fallon is the assistant director of national intelligence in the Office of Legislative Affairs in Washington, D.C., having previously served as deputy director. Fallon also served as deputy director in the Office of Corporate Communications, as well as senior expert and chief of congressional relations at the Defense Intelligence Agency. He was an appointee in President George W. Bush's administration and served in the State Department's Bureau of Political-Military Affairs. Fallon began his career on Capitol Hill as a congressional staffer. He received a BA from Wesley College and an MA from The George Washington University. Fallon and his wife are the parents of three children.

DAVID M.
KENNEDY CENTER
FOR INTERNATIONAL STUDIES