How to Be an Antiracist, Part II

Taking a step back, the panel—drawing on reactions from BYU students and faculty—will revisit themes raised throughout the semester and address remaining questions concerning Kendi’s book and the myths and realities surrounding race, both globally and closer to home.

Leslie Hadfield (moderator) is an associate professor of History at BYU and the coordinator of the Africana Studies program at the Kennedy Center.

Rebecca de Schweinitz is an associate professor of History at BYU.

Ryan Gabriel is an assistant professor of Sociology at BYU.

Lori Spruance is an assistant professor of Public Health at BYU.